Eastern's coal conversion cut $2 million heat bill

DOUGLAS BACKSTROM
Managing editor

The race to reduce Eastern's annual heating bill is on.

In December 1986, when Eastern's coal conversion project is completed, the university will be heated by coal and gas, Physical Plant Director Everett Alms said. Alms added that gas is especially lucrative now, as gas prices continue to fall.

Alms estimated that Eastern spends more than $2 million a year to heat the university.

And because Eastern has been able to get gas "more easily," the university will utilize both gas and coal, said Norma Armstrong, vice president for administration and finance.

Pam Meyer, Board of Governors spokesman, said Western Illinois University and Eastern spent the most money to heat their campuses during the winter of 1984.

However, Eastern and Western are the only two BOG schools with residence halls to heat. The other BOG schools are commuter colleges.

The following is an estimated average of what BOG universities spent on their heating bills the winter of 1984:

$50,000—Western Illinois
$80,000—Eastern
$62,000—Northeastern
$43,921—Chicago State
$38,856—Governors State

Western's heating bill average is similar to Eastern's because it has also converted to coal, Meyer said. However, she added that Western is more advanced in its conversion project.

Although Eastern is second in spending on heating bills, the price to purchase gas is decreasing. Alms said the conversion will allow Eastern to finance gas more easily.

However, Armstrong added it is too early to predict how the use of both materials will effect the heating bills.

To finance the materials, Armstrong said Eastern receives a grant from the federal government for one half of the total and the university pays for the rest.

She added that funding for Eastern's half of the heating bill comes from tuition and fees and additional state monies.

Although Eastern will be able to use both materials, Alms said coal will be (See EASTERN'S, page 9)

College of Business vying for 'Build Illinois' funding

By LARRY KAHAN
Staff writer

Lt. Gov. George H. Ryan said Wednesday that Eastern has a "good chance" of receiving $230,000 in College of Business planning funds from the Build Illinois program.

The College of Business funding is "one of the basic things the Build Illinois program is all about," Ryan said during a hearing at Eastern to determine if area projects are within the program's guidelines.

"We feel that by building this facility at Eastern we will add to the viability of education," Ryan said. Ryan will make final recommendations to Gov. James R. Thompson in December.

Eastern President Stanley Rives said he believes Eastern's "chances are excellent."

"The project is right down the line of Build Illinois," he said, because it helps education and aids in economic development.

Build Illinois is an eight-year, $2.3 billion program designed to help improve Illinois housing, rebuild the economy's infrastructure and improve community business.

The General Assembly has appropriated $280 million to be used in the first year of the program, which ends June 30, 1986.

Because 108 projects worth $126 million were added to the original Build Illinois bill, Ryan is currently touring the state holding hearings on the projects to determine if any can wait for a year.

Projects which are not allocated first-year funding will probably receive second-year funding, Ryan said. More than $211 million of the $280 million first-year total has already been allocated.

Ryan said the decision for first-year expenditures will be hard.

Lt. Gov. George Ryan

"I have not seen a bad project yet," said Ryan, who has reviewed 103 of the 108 "add-on" projects under the Build Illinois program.

Rives said the anticipated planning money would enable Eastern to provide an adequate instructional facility for students and faculty.

A Coleman Hall annex to house the College of Business is the probable solution to planning funds.

"Presently, one third of Easterns total enrollment of 10,000 are business majors," Rives said.

Ted Ivarie, dean of the College of Business, said Eastern students deserve better than what is offered structurally.

"Eastern has never had a business facility of its own," Ivarie said. Business classes are conducted in eight campus buildings.

Ivarie said this will directly affect Eastern students by providing "a new level of education" where students could interact confidentially with the World military spending climbs at expense of social programs

WASHINGTON (AP)—World military spending will reach $800 billion this year—460 billion more than last year—continuing a post-World War II weapons buildup at the cost of social programs, a report by arms control advocates said Wednesday.

The United States and the Soviet Union, with 11 percent of the world's population, account for more than half the military spending, the report said.

Among the United States and its European allies, annual per capita military spending amounts to about $45, compared with $11 for health each child and $25,600 to support each soldier.

The findings, based on official U.S. and international statistics, were published by World Priorities, an economic research group whose sponsors include the Rockefeller Foundation, the Arms Control Association and the World Policy Institute.

For example, it said:

- The Soviet Union spends more on its military than the governments of all the developing countries spend for education and health care for their 3.6 billion people.
- The budget of the U.S. Air Force is larger than the total educational budget for 1.2 billion children in Africa, Latin America and Asia.
- Developed countries on average spend 5.4 percent of their GNP for military purposes, 0.3 percent for development assistance to poor countries.
- Since 1960, Third World military spending has increased five-fold and the number of countries ruled by military governments has grown from 22 to 57.
- The Soviet Union maintains more than 778,000 troops in 22 foreign countries; the United States has 479,000 troops at bases in 40 foreign countries.

Shuttle finishes science study

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif.—Challenger coasted onto a desert runway Wednesday after a science mission flown by a record crew of eight, and researchers promptly began studying five of the astronauts to see how they re-adapt to gravity.

The space shuttle and its crew of five Americans, two West Germans and a Dutchman touched down at 12:45 p.m. EST on a dry lakebed after a 7-day, 45-minute mission in which it orbited the Earth 111 times and traveled more than 3 million miles.

Dotson's hotel bill 'exaggerated'

CHICAGO—Reports of a wild spending spree at a New York hotel by Gary Dotson, in the city for a television appearance, are "grossly exaggerated," a television network official said Wednesday.

Dotson, freed from prison last spring after serving six years for a rape his alleged victim now says never occurred, and his fiancée, appeared on ABC's "Good Morning America."

An item in the Page Six column of Wednesday's New York Post said the two ran up "unusually large" room service charges at the Hotel Plaza-Athenee.

Voters give strong support to several sensitive issues

By The Associated Press

Voters approved ballot measures affirming handgun control and the right to abortions and to smoke-free work places, but three communities rejected attempts to flouridate their water and San Franciscans refused to limit downtown high-rise construction.

Even in an off year election, voters in nine states and scores of cities and towns grappled with ballot issues that touched on some of the nation's most emotion-laden economic and social questions.

Three New England towns, Bristol, Conn.; Dover, N.H.; and Derry N.H., rejected similarly worded measures Tuesday calling for the overturning of the Supreme Court's 12-year old ruling that legalized abortions.

It was the first time since the high court ruling, Roe vs. Wade, that voters had a chance to vote on such referendums.

Oak Park Ill., one of four U.S. cities which have banned handguns, beat back a proposal to repeal its 13-month-old ban. The other cities with similar handgun laws are Washington, D.C., Morton Grove, Ill.; and Evanston, Ill.

Tucson, Ariz., voters passed a proposition restricting smoking in workplaces, and another one limiting the size and locations of billboards. But they defeated a measure that would require smoke-free space in restaurants.

Flouridation fared badly in three cities. San Antonio, Texas, narrowly turned back a proposal to flouridate the city's water supply, making it the second largest city without flouridation in its water after Los Angeles. Westfield and Leominster, both in Massachusetts, also rejected flouridation.

The president of a national anti-flouridation group saw the results as part of a trend.

"People feel the time has come to decrease the amount of additives in our drinking water and they are increasingly demanding a say in issues such as flouridation," said Susan Pare, president of the Center for Health Action, based in Springfield, Mass.

Looking a little surprised, Bill Clark, director of student activities, "gets the goat" after receiving the most votes in a contest sponsored by the EIU athletic trainers club.

Clark announced winner of 'get the goat' contest

By DANE BUCZKOWSKI
Staff writer

A 200-pound goat was delivered to Union Area Head Bill Clark's house at about 8 p.m. Tuesday after he was announced the winner of the "Who Gets the Goat Contest."

The contest, coordinated by Dennis Aten, an athletic trainer, gave students a chance to cast a $1 vote for their favorite "goat" at Eastern.

Proceeds from the contest, which totaled $339, went towards the creation of a scholarship fund for Eastern sports medicine students, Aten said.

This is the first contest of this type held at Eastern, according to Aten.

But delivering the over-sized goat to Clark's home was not an easy task.

The goat donor, who wished to remain anonymous, said she first experienced trouble when she had to squeeze the goat, dubbed Ambrose, into her station wagon.

Then, the donator said, Ambrose's mate jumped the fence "to try to come along for the ride" creating more trouble.

After Ambrose's mate was returned to his pen with some persuasive measures, the stubborn giant goat was delivered to Clark's front lawn.

Clark said, "I'm glad I could help out." He also thanked Aten "for the privilege of being the goat."

After Ambrose walked around Clark's front yard for a about half an hour, she was returned to her mate at the doner's farm.

When asked about her experience of visiting a university official's home, Ambrose had no comment.

Although Aten said delivering the goat to the winner's home was "a very fun experience," he said the voter turnout was "relatively disappointing."

Aten said Clark won the election with 72 votes and Athletic Director R.C. Johnson came in second with 67 votes. Eastern President Stanley Rives took fifth with 29 votes.

"We hope to spark other types of events like this to raise money for funds," Aten said. He said he believes the results could have been better if more students had participated.

Senate tables fee request from Health Service board

By A.L. LANDERS
Staff writer

A proposal from the Health Service board, designed to raise the pharmacy fee each student pays by $1, was tabled by the Student Senate Wednesday.

Student Senate Speaker Larry Markey said the proposal, if instituted, would raise pharmacy fees paid by each student from $2.50 to $3.50 a semester.

The proposal requested the increase due to a hike in salaries and costs, Markey said.

Student body president Floyd Akins said that if the pharmacy fee was not increased, prescription drugs purchased at the health service would cost around 50 cents to a $1 more per prescription.

Since an increase in student fees is involved, the proposal, to be put into effect, will have to put before the student body for approval in either a special election or regular election.

Markey said that since the proposal was given to him this Wednesday, and since the next regular election is Nov. 13, it would be "virtually impossible" to have the proposal on the ballot.

If the senate approves the proposal, a special election will be held either this semester or next semester, Markey said.

"I would like to see it (a special election) as soon as possible, because of a time factor," Markey said.

Markey urged senators to gain information concerning the proposal from either J.D. Heath, director of Health Services, or the Health Service board, so that they would better understand the proposal, and would be able to answer any questions the students may have.

In other business, a forum was announced for the candidates running in the Nov. 13 elections.

Senator John Durante said the candidates would be allowed three minutes to speak on why they are running for office, followed by a two minute question and answer period for students to question the candidate.

The forum will be held Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola/Tuscola room.

All students are welcome to attend, Durante said.

Twenty-three candidates are slated to be on the ballot of the election, committee member Steve Hogan said.

Nine students are running for five resident hall seats, four are running for the five full and two half seats available from the off campus district. Eleven candidates are in contention for the five full and one half seats available from the at-large district.

Lectures cite differences in pornography, erotica

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Ways to solve the social problem of pornography were discussed by Peggy Brayfield, coordinator of the Women's Studies Council, during a presentation in the Old Ballroom Wednesday night from 7-9 p.m.

Brayfield lead the presentation, "Pornography: Facts, Interpretations, Open Discussion," by reviewing ways of reasoning about pornography.

Handouts with the basic material of the presentation were given to the audience.

Brayfield spoke on various points of view of pornography such as the conservative tradition, fundamentalist religions, liberal views, free speech argument, and moral issues.

Brayfield went on to explain that there are four distinct steps in solving this social problem. "The first step is to recognize the problem," Brayfield said.

After recognition, acknowledge your feelings about the problem, analyze the problem and finally consider alternative solutions to the problem, Brayfield said.

Sue Woods, Health Education instructor at Eastern, hosted a slide presentation demonstrating the difference between pornography and erotica.

Woods, an instructor of Human Sexuality for 10 years, began by defining pornography and erotica. "Erotica is from the Greek word 'Eros,' meaning the personification of sexual love," Woods said.

"Pornography, from the Greek 'porne,' meaning sexual slaves or prostitutes; plus 'graphos' meaning depictions of," Woods said.

The slide presentation was composed of some explicit sexual material clearly differentiating pornography from erotica.

A slide presenting the act of sexual intercourse was viewed with the audience showing no dominance factors or sense of conquest present, therefore, labeling the slide erotica.

Bonnie Buckley, Coles County coordinator for Women Against Rape, said research has proven that pornography "reinforces sexual assault because it legitimizes it," Buckley said.

A major characteristic of sexual offenders is that 80 percent of them were sexually abused as children.

"These people have been found to equate sexuality with anger, power and control," Buckley said.

Brayfield and Buckley read some personal experiences from Linda Lovelace and former prostitutes that had been present at the Minneapolis hearing on pornography.

Correction

In Wednesday's Daily Eastern News, Rod Schaffer of the academic computer center was incorrectly quoted as saying computer disks range from $7 to $10 in price. Computer disks actually cost between $4 and $5.

In the same story, Computer Services Director Dave Henard was incorrectly quoted as saying a computer operation manual available at the Union Bookstore costs about $20. The computer operation manual is priced at $10.83.

Also in the story, the computer program for copying disks was referred to as the "Personal Computer Wright Word Processor." It is actually called the Personal Computer Write Word Processor.

The News regrets these errors.

Funds for new fire system will be well spent

The fire suppression system which will be installed in the Computer Center this semester is a bargain at any price.

The idea to install the system in the center, located in the lower west wing of the Student Services Building, was originally proposed several years ago by Computer Service Director Dave Henard and Operations Manager Tom Hiatt.

The Board of Governors during its October meeting approved funds for installation of a new $18,100 system, which will undoubtedly provide better security for the center's equipment and for the students and faculty who use it.

The present fire protection system is comprised of smoke detectors that only alert security, while the new system is designed to automatically spray a dry chemical on the fire to quickly extinguish it.

Eastern President Stanley Rives said, "Eastern will continue to update its computer facilities with equipment worth millions of dollars and needs the security the fire suppression system provides."

Although the exact date of installation has not been determined, with the BOG's approval, a wise idea that took root several years ago is closer to becoming a reality.

Physical Plant Director Everett Alms said the system, which will be installed by the Getz Fire Equipment Company of Peoria, should take no more than 30 days. And the installation is not expected to interfere with access to the center, which has become a major traffic area not only for students, but for Eastern officials, as well.

As Computer Service Director Dave Henard pointed out, a fire in the center would create a tremendous inconvenience and setback for the university.

It's nice to see the university pushing for fire protection which should be more in line with the millions of dollars the university hopes to invest in bringing state of the art equipment into the center.

Students might be 'conservative'

Editor:

I see the candidate Republicans may run for Congress next year (25-year-old Al Salvi; article in Tues., Oct. 22 edition of The Daily Eastern News) claims there is a conservative trend among college students.

There may be some truth to this, and for those who want to find out one major reason why, I would urge them to read a most enlightening (and frightening) article on page 14 of the Sept. 23 issue of Newsweek. The article should be mandatory

If you aren't sick, go to Health Service

Editor:

I was furious when I read the two columns in the Oct. 8 edition of The Daily Eastern News about how good Health Service would be if those who weren't really sick would stay home.

I was sick with a "cold" for a month. Each time I went, I was given a bottle of cough syrup and sent on my way. I went home one weekend to see my family doctor and was diagnosed with walking pneumonia. After laughing at the medications Health Service sold me, he prescribed some effective drugs for me to take.

My suggestion to those who really are sick is to see a doctor who knows what he is doing and listens to you before writing out a prescription. Let those who aren't sick or are "just there to get out of class" waste their time there.

My doctor summed up what I'm trying to say when he asked me, "Do they do anything else but take your temperature?"

There are no journalists 'fit' for space

The latest news from the space-cadets at NASA is that a journalist will soon be shot into space.

No, this isn't another one of President Reagan's attempts to gag the press. The journalist, who has yet to be chosen, will accompany astronauts in an upcoming space-shuttle flight—so they say. I'll believe it when I see it.

The fact of the matter is, I don't think the government has any intention of putting a reporter in orbit. They say they're going to, but I think it's just a public relations ploy.

They could easily get away with it. You see, the space shuttle goes up so often now that no one even notices anymore. So, in a few weeks, when someone asks Reagan why there was no journalist in space, he'll shine that Hollywood smile and say, "Sure there was. Last week, just before we sent up the accountant and the lion tamer. Don't you remember?" Everyone will nod their heads, embarrassed at their own ignorance, and that will be that.

The reason I don't think there will ever be a journalist in space is that it will be impossible to choose one.

The problem is the requirements the government has put on the as-yet unnamed space journalist. He or she must have at least five years experience in journalism, but must also pass a physical examination. These requirements are as contradictory as making someone pass a lie-detector test before running for public office.

Any journalist who has been in the field for five years undoubtedly drinks heavily, is over or underweight, smokes at least seven packs of cigarettes a day and is quite possibly insane. Most journalists are barely healthy enough to pass a drivers license test, let alone climb into a space ship.

Then there is the requirement that the chosen journalist must be an effective communicator in both the print and television mediums. Another impossibility. In journalism, you're either a reporter or an actor—there's no in-between.

So you see, there is no way NASA will ever be able to choose a professional journalist for this mission. But if they're serious about putting a journalist into space, the obvious solution is to put a college journalist up there.

Off the record:

Kevin McDermott

Our editor in chief, for instance, would be perfect. He's had more experience than most college journalists, and he would be a riot on television.

Think of the exclusives The Daily Eastern News would get. We could have banner headlines, searing, emotional stories and full-color pictures of our editor getting space-sick. And, as usual, the Student Senate would come up with some ridiculous charge of bias against the newspaper—"space slant," guess it would be called—which will mean some terrific controversy.

But why limit it to college journalists? Why not put just a typical college student in orbit?

We could put a member of the College Republicans up there. While the rest of the astronauts are steadily working on their experiments, the Reagan Youth could flail around in front of the TV camera in his three-piece suit saying "Hi, Mom" and making funny faces at the Soviet Union through the window.

Or how about someone like Student Senator Joe O'Mera, who is still prying his foot out of his mouth after his false and potentially slanderous statements last month against Charleston's building inspector? Not only would O'Mera be out of our hair for awhile, but his televised reports on the day-to-day activities of the space-shuttle crew would make Eastern famous and could lead to some fascinating lawsuits.

And, for a little silliness in space, we could send up former Student Body President Joe Butler to preach his unique philosophy to the world, trash the shuttle cabin and terrorize the astronauts. His landlord would never find him there.

Still, I wouldn't advise Joe to go on the mission. If NASA officials are anything like our student politicians, they just might decide to leave him up there.

BOG rep praises interest rise

By JULIE ZOOK
Government editor

Student Board of Governors Representative Michael Ashack said he believes Student Senate interest in the BOG has increased this year.

"Senate is more interested in the board this year," Ashack said. "I didn't see that at all last year."

Ashack said he has had several achievements since being elected to the BOG post April 17.

"I've been making the office more personable," he said. "I've been more available" to students.

Ashack said he is taking more interest in the post than his predecessor, Aaron Shepley, who graduated in May.

BOG Rep. Mike Ashack

"I'm taking an active part as an executive officer," he said, explaining that he informs the senate of BOG meetings well in advance, and reports to senate on the meetings as well as interpreting what BOG actions mean to Eastern students.

Ashack said he wasn't sure if he would try for re-election in April, adding he's been telling people he'll "probably decide on the slopes over spring break."

He said he believes this year's senate is doing better than last year's.

"The senators have the option of working on something they like," Ashack said, in reference to committee assignments.

"I'd like to see more student involvement," he said. But "the committees are better because there are more non-senators."

Multiple Sclerosis campaign starts with speech by regional manager

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Eastern's Students Against Multiple Sclerosis Program kicked off Wednesday in the Union with slides and a presentation from Scott Wolfman, regional manager for the MS campaign.

Wolfman, from New York, spoke to a group of about 10 students interested in becoming involved with the campus MS program.

Wolfman began his presentation with a video of the most successful fund raiser for MS, a Rock-Alike contest featuring students imitating famous rock singers.

"The Rock-Alike generates media attention as well as being a successful fund raiser," Wolfman said.

After the video, Wolfman explained the facts about MS.

"MS strikes between the ages of 18-35, the age group of everyone in this room," Wolfman said.

MS is the opposite of AIDS, Wolfman explained. Instead of having no immune system as in AIDS, the victim has an overactive immune system.

"A person does not die from MS; they may live within seven years of the normal mortality rate," Wolfman said.

Death in a person with MS is caused by others problems involving the taxing of the organs, he explained.

It wasn't until 1945 that the MS association was formed, he said, but support has been steadily increasing.

There is no known cure for the disease. "There is no definitely known cause, cure or treatment," he said.

The Producers to play McAfee Gym Thursday

By ANGELA PAOLI
Assistant activities editor

Ticket sales are not going as well as expected for "The Producers," a group scheduled to play at Eastern Thursday, Jeff Phillips, University Board main stage coordinator, said.

However, "I expect a lot of walk-in sales," he added.

"The Producers," a band made popular by extensive air play on MTV, are scheduled to play at 8 p.m. in McAfee gym.

Opening for "The Producers," will be the "Last Gentlemen," Phillips said.

"The Last Gentlemen" are a band from Champaign that have opened for many bands such as the "Psychedelic Furs," he added.

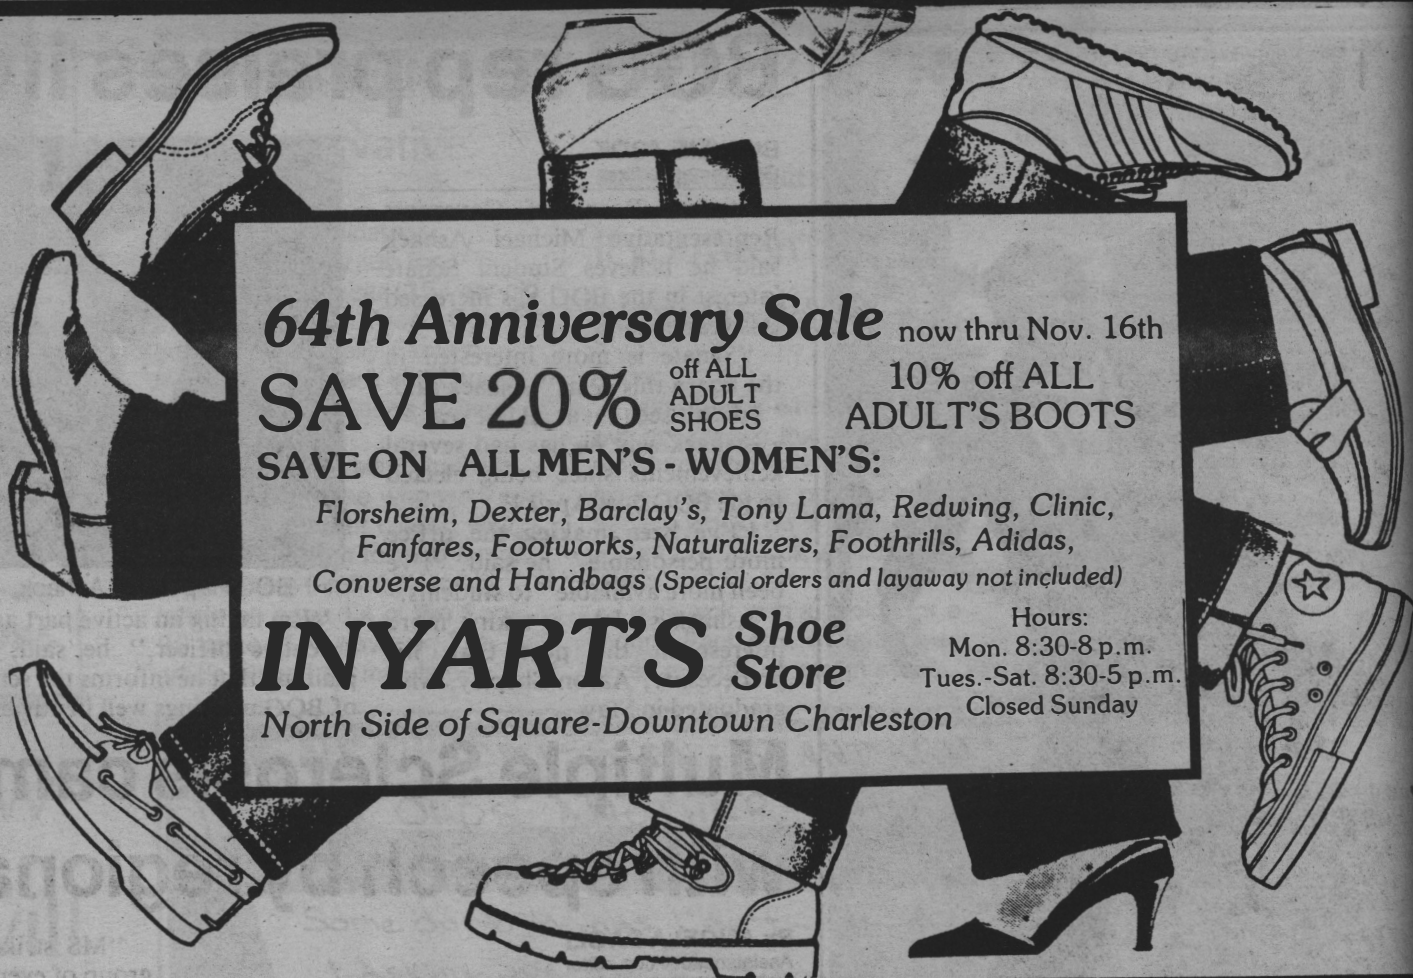

"The Producers," originally from Atlanta, have had an extensive following in the Caribbean, having played in the Dominican Republic, Public Relations Coordinator Mary Beth Marek, said.

"The Producers" shared the roster on MTV's first New Year's Special, with "Duran Duran" and "Flock of Seagulls," she said.

The band was formed six years ago and currently have three albums out, the most recent titled, Run for Your Life, Phillips said.

Some of their hit songs featured on their albums are "What's He Got," and "She Sheila," Phillips said.

Tickets are $3 for Eastern students provided they have a valid Eastern ID and $4 for the general public, Phillips said.

Workshop finds ways to cope with jealousy

By CAROL ROEHM
Staff writer

Jealousy is an emotion that every person has experienced at one time or another.

Eleanor McCabe of the Counseling Center got a little more specific about that turbulent emotion Wednesday at a workshop titled "Jealousy."

McCabe defined a jealous person as one who is insecure, angry and has a lack of control. She said a person who has a relationship with a jealous person might feel guilty, smothered or frustrated.

"Jealousy totally consumes the person and overwhelms (him)," McCabe said. "The person feels angry at (himself), besides others, because (he) can't control the emotion."

McCabe also explained the difference between envy and jealousy. Envy is wanting to have something or to be like someone else, while jealousy is the fear of loss, McCabe said.

McCabe stressed that jealousy is destructive to relationships because the emotion becomes so unbearable that it scares the other person away.

Reactions that are demonstrated by a jealous person are silence, intense watching and investigating, self-improvement and revenge.

A 20-question evaluation test which determines a person's level of jealousy was distributed to the audience.

McCabe explained that the source of jealousy is from one's self because the person has feelings of insecurity or inferiority.

"If you're jealous about a situation, turn the mirror back on yourself and find what you're lacking," McCabe said.

Also distributed was a jealousy exercise that consisted of two jealousy-producing situations about friendship and a relationship with the opposite sex. Audience members were asked to write down their thoughts, feelings and how they would manage the situation. Then they compared their reactions to a list of productive strategies.

McCabe suggested that if people know ahead of time that they are going to be faced with jealousy-producing situation, they should confront their loved ones about it and set down some guidelines.

"Don't accuse your partner of doing a jealousy-provoking thing," McCabe said. "Admit that you are jealous and ask for your partner to help you."

On the other hand, if a person's partner is the one who is jealous the best strategy is to offer reassurance, McCabe said.

To prevent a jealous-producing situation from occurring in the first place, it is best not to mention areas in which a loved one feels inferior, McCabe said.

RHA sells Sunday chili dinner tickets

By AMY CARR
Staff writer

A chili supper will be served at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in the Taylor-Lawson food service for all residence hall residents.

A limited number of tickets are on sale through Friday in front of Taylor's food service for $2.

The dinner, sponsored by the Residence Hall Association, includes a drink and 8 ounces of chili provided by Wendy's, 300 W. Lincoln Ave., RHA President Dave Ascolani said.

RHA is scheduled to meet at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Thomas Hall food service to discuss RHA projects.

RHA members are working on plans for a December talent show. Winners from Tuesday's talent show, held in Carman Hall, will be asked to perform in the RHA-sponsored show as well, Ascolani said.

In addition, RHA will be distributing information cards to residence halls within the next few weeks, he said. The cards will contain frequently used campus phone numbers and information about RHA and what it can do for students.

Eleven Eastern delegates to the Great Lakes Association of College and University Residence Halls are preparing reports on sessions they attended for presentation to RHA next week, Ascolani said.

Keiter receives chemistry research grants

By RUDY SCHELLY
Staff writer

Chemistry instructor Richard Keiter recently received a $15,000 grant from the American Chemistry Society and Petroleum Research Foundation for fuel research to be conducted at Eastern.

Keiter, who also received a two-year $64,000 grant from the National Science Foundation earlier this year, said the grant will supply funds for chemicals, equipment, salaries for instructors and stipends for the students working with him during the summer.

"The basis of our research," Keiter said, "begins before the second World War when scientists developed a process by which the synthesis gases found in coal can be reacted upon to produce useful organic substances, such as a certain fuel."

"The process was deemed much too expensive at that time, but research has continued," he said. "Since then, the major point has been to develop a catalyst for the reaction that is economical and variable, producing usable organic substances such as gasoline and other fuels."

At Eastern, Keiter said, "We are trying to build a designer molecule, containing two different metals, that will provide insight to the synthesis of such an important catalyst."

The grant was awarded, he said, because the Chemistry Society believed that his research was important and could include new and unusual discoveries.

"The United States is particularly interested in this process because we have a lot of coal," he said. "If such a process were found, we would see the U.S. a lot less dependant on foreign countries for fuel."

Students often ignore financial aid sources

By BILL DENNIS
Staff writer

Believe it or not, college students across the nation regularly miss opportunities for easy money.

Kathryn Rosypal, president of Great Potentials Resource Center, said there are many different sources of financial aid for college, but much of it is ignored by most students.

Great Potentials is an organization which, for a fee, locates possible non-government financial aid sources for students.

"There is a lot of aid out there which is not called upon," Rosypal said, adding that students should consider aid from sources outside their local area.

"For instance, organizations in New York and California will give financial aid to a student in Illinois," if he or she is eligible, she said.

John Flynn, Eastern's director of financial aid, agreed that there is a great deal of unused aid, but said it is due to students' unwillingness to pursue certain types of aid.

"Whether or not they know about it (unused aid) is not the issue," Flynn said. "Human nature says that everybody wants freebies. I don't think there are very many not applying for those (free) programs."

"There's a lot of students who are eligible for work study programs who won't consider working," Flynn said. "There's a lot of students who are eligible for loan programs who won't consider taking a loan."

Flynn and Rosypal agree that the more financial aid students apply for, the more likely they are to receive aid.

"I think students should apply for anything and everything they have a chance of getting, and then let the organization or institution (giving the aid) decide eligibility," Flynn said.

Rosypal suggests students who are "boarderline" on eligibility for government aid should apply for private aid as well.

"There's nothing in the rule book that says you can't get both," Rosypal said.

A lack of understanding of eligibility also hinders many who seek the different forms of financial aid.

"We have too many parents and students who assume non-eligibility based on hearsay, folklore... whatever," Flynn said. "They listen to a next-door neighbor or brother-in-law who says 'Aw, don't apply for that, I applied and I didn't get a thing.' No two people's circumstances are identical."

Rosypal believes there is a lack of resources available for finding financial aid information.

"Up until now, the only resource for finding financial aid information were two books in the library," Rosypal said. Parents and students seeking financial aid information had to sift through thousands of pages to find any private aid they might be eligible for...

Applying early a key in financial aid bids

By BILL DENNIS
Staff writer

Although the application process generally starts early in January, Financial Aid Director John Flynn believes "it's never too early to apply."

Flynn said all eligible students who have returned a completed application for campus-based aid to the financial aid office by April 15 will receive aid.

Campus based aid includes National Direct Student Loans, College Work Study and Supplemental Grants.

After that date, aid will be considered in order of completeness until funds run out, Flynn said.

For students who will be sophomores, juniors and seniors, there is a June 1 cut-off date for full-year consideration for an Illinois State Scholarship Commission grant, Flynn said. The deadline for second semester consideration is March 1, he added.

Students have until May 1 to apply for a PELL Grant for the current school year, Flynn said. "If students have any eligibility, they will receive funds," Flynn said. "It's not a matter of (PELL) running out of money."

A major pitfall for those seeking financial aid is following directions, Flynn said.

"I think the most important thing they can do is read the directions," he said. Applicants often do not complete the forms properly or follow up on previous instructions.

The process would be made easier if students completed the financial aid applications themselves, rather than relying on their parents, Flynn said. When problems arise, the student is not aware of what forms have been completed.

Parents with more than one child attending the same institution will often send in financial aid information for one of their children, assuming that the college will apply the information to the other child's records, Flynn said.

"Now with computers, we can make statistical surveys and find out which financial aid students are eligible for," she said.

Rosypal's organization sends applicants a data sheet which they later use to compare with the eligibility requirements of all the private aid sources.

Eligibility requirements for non-governmental aid can be based on academic standing, race, religion, ethnic origin, or membership in a particular organization. However, public financial aid is usually based on need.

These private sources of financial aid may be able to provide students with money for school in a time when funding for public financial aid is on the decline.

"For some programs, there is a tightening of regulations," Flynn said, "and it's going to continue." Flynn said families with an adjusted gross income of $30,000 will now have to go through a needs test.

Formulas for awarding Illinois State Scholarship Commission and PELL grants have been made more selective, Flynn said. "It's not a question of fairness, it's a question of emphasis on who's going to be the recipient (of the aid)."

"Regardless of how high you go in setting standards, you are going to be excluding somebody who logic and common sense tells you should be an exception," Flynn said. "You can only have so many exceptions and then you don't have exceptions any more."

However, Rosypal said funding of private financial aid has been increasing.

"It's like the private sector has been picking up the programs being dropped by the government," she said. When more people receive private aid, more money is available for those who are only eligible for public aid.

Rosypal's organization charges undergraduates $28.50 and graduate students $39 to locate non-government aid for which students may be eligible.

Both Flynn and Rosypal agreed that it is essential for students to apply early and apply often for financial aid.

Late applicants may find that no money is available for financial aid, even if they are eligible and applied before the official deadline, because funds may run out before the official deadline for applications is reached.

Applications for campus-based aid will be considered in order of completeness, which may result in late applicants not receiving money, Flynn said.

The ISSC is currently plagued with trying to fund applicants who applied after the money ran out.

"Right now it appears students' (ISSC) awards will be cut by $50," Flynn said. "The reason for the reduction is to fund those students who applied later than others, but still before the deadline."

Deadlines are also a problem in applying for private financial aid.

"The number-one mistake applicants make is not applying early enough," Rosypal said. "We get about 4,000 letters in spring and summer from students asking if we can help them get financial aid for fall."

faculty.

Rives said the facility would "upgrade the quality of education" by allowing space for specialized activities and a computer lab.

Charleston Mayor Murray Choate, who lobbied for the funds along with several community business leaders, said the project would benefit the university as well as the city of Charleston.

"Charleston has experienced unemployment; therefore, we are urging the support of the Build Illinois program," Choate said.

Eastern student, Kim Anderson, who spoke at the hearing, said the quality of the buildings do not equal the quality of the students.

And "many students feel uncomfortable meeting with teachers in offices which don't provide confidentiality."

Eastern has been trying to get funds for a College of Business facility for several years, but this is the farthest the project has ever gotten.

Although the program has had Board of Governors support, it has never passed through the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the General Assembly.

But while the news was favorable for Eastern, the city of Charleston did not get as promising results.

Charleston's sewer system needs to be rehabilitated at an estimated cost of $6.2 million.

However, Ryan said the sewer project is one of the projects that may receive some funding this year and additional funding next year.

Ryan said Charleston will not be able to spend the $6.2 million by June 30, 1986, so it would not receive a full allocation.

the primary energy source. "The biggest advantage (to using coal) is the money saving advantage," he added.

Alms said the only noticeable difference when the conversion is completed will be additional traffic near the Power Plant from material being shipped in.

While students may not notice a difference in the university's switch from coal to gas and back to coal, Eastern officials are hoping a difference will be seen in the utility budget.

The effort to reduce the heating bills is only the first step in an attempt to make Eastern more energy efficient.

critical points in matches.
"We just don't have people who are bearing down when they have to," Ralston said. "You just can't do that; and we also have to be able to play under pressure. We've got to see who's coming forth."
To further hinder the Panthers, freshman middle hitter Gianna Galanti is doubtful for the trip due to a throat infection. Galanti has not practiced all week because of the illness.
Ralston also said that freshman LeAnn Thomas will start at setter in a 5-1 alignment for the Panthers. Eastern had been experimenting with a 2-2 offense using senior Misty Buckhold and sophomore Jeanne Pacione as setters.

"Her (Thomas') lack of height (5-foot-4) is going to hurt," Ralston said. "But I have to give her a chance to run the offense."
Thomas may lack height, but certainly not in success. The freshman comes out of the highly-successful Riverton program that also produced Buckhold.
Thomas helped lead Riverton to a 35-2 record and an Elite Eight berth last season. Moreover, Riverton compiled an unbelievable 230-7 record—a .970 winning percentage—since Thomas began playing in sixth grade.

New attitude key to Bears', Ditka's romping success

CHICAGO (AP)—Has success forged a new image for Mike Ditka? It was a question out to the man now, in his fourth and most successful year as Chicago Bears coach.

Ditka bit his lip, allowed himself a quick smile and replied: "I'm glad it wasn't (the old) Mike out there (Sunday, when the Bears defeated the Green Bay Packers 16-10 in a mistake-filled, brawl-behind-the-contest). That Mike would have been awfully excited for a while."

The questioner persisted. Was there a new, different Mike off the field?

"I don't drive the highways as much," said Ditka, referring to much-publicized arrest in Chicago for driving under the influence of alcohol following victory over San Francisco last month. "That's true."

Secure because he already has been awarded second three-year contract, buoyed by success and hailed recently as something of an innovator, Ditka can afford to lampoon his new image. He can afford to be restrained. He is winning.

It was not always so. Ditka was an All-Pro tight end during his first stay with the Bears, but he came back to Chicago four years ago as an untested Dallas assistant coach. His selection by Chicago's sense of loyalty than Ditka's acumen.

But the Bears' 1984 march as far as the National Football Conference title game—they were derailed by San Francisco 23-0—and their 9-0 performance far this year—including the mild revenge that came with beating the 49ers—has silenced most of the critics.

'Beat Mudra' chants die down

UNI is Panthers' top priority, not former coach

By JEFF LONG
Sports editor

University of Northern Iowa coach Darrell Mudra has been a marked man on Eastern's football schedule since leaving the Panther helm following the 1982 season.

For the players he had coached, there was a feeling of betrayal. They needed no pep talks to get up for playing against their ex-coach. A victory over Mudra was especially sweet.

Mudra made an abrupt exit in 1982 after leading the Panthers to an 11-1-1 campaign and the NCAA I-AA quarterfinals. He was not quickly forgotten.

But now three years later, the once-familiar chants of 'Beat Mudra' which rang across the practice fields before Eastern-Northern Iowa games have died down.

Saturday, the Panthers will be up against their former mentor for the third time since his departure from Eastern. However, only three regulars remain from that 1982 squad, and to the majority of Panther newcomers, Mudra is just a name from the past.

His past is a long and illustrious one. In five years at Eastern, he compiled a 47-15-1 record while leading the Panthers to three NCAA tournament spots.

The well-traveled coach is now in his 24th season and his seventh team in those years. He's 22-8 at UNI, but is winless in two tries against his former team.

This year, Mudra's purple Panthers are 7-1 and ranked fifth in Division I-AA. They've clinched the Gateway Conference title, becoming the target of every upset-minded team. Eastern is no exception.

And there's at least three Panthers who are extra-pumped up for one more shot at Mudra.

Tackle Barry Wolfe, defensive

Former Panther Football coach Darrell Mudra, who ressurected Eastern's lackluster football program seven years ago, is currently enjoying success at the University of Northern Iowa.

end Tom Moskal and cornerback Brian Newby are the only carry-overs from Mudra's reign, but they're downplaying the matchup. Moskal and Newby are also the only Panthers on this year's squad who have played in Northern Iowa's UNI-Dome, back in 1982.

"It's (beat Mudra) pretty much died down," Moskal said. "It's not near as strong as it was last year. All those guys are gone and there's only a couple of us around. But it still means a lot to me."

Moskal was a starter as a freshman in Mudra's final year and has blossomed into the Panthers' top lineman. He's more interested in beating Northern Iowa than he is Mudra this time around.

"Right now it's just the fact of them being fifth-ranked in the nation," Moskal said. "They're having a good season and we have a chance to beat them. That's what we're concentrating on."

Wolfe says the Mudra factor is yet another tool of motivation, but he's not putting much stock in it either.

"I think it's something of sentimental value for the older players," Wolfe said. "But we've got a whole new group in here now. It's not as prevalent with the young guys—kind of dying down. This is just another game we've got to be ready for."

Newby remembers the Mudra days and the intensity the Panthers had in both games against Northern Iowa since Mudra's departure. Last year, Eastern derailed UNI from the playoffs with a 27-13 upset-win, giving Eastern a tie with UNI for the Mid-Continent Conference title.

Only the memory lingers, but Mudra will still be in the back of Newby's mind when the two teams clash Saturday.

"Mudra knows we're going to play him hard," Newby said. "We want to show that we can rise up to the occasion."

"I think it (beat Mudra) is still there with the juniors and seniors—we're the last guys around who played under Mudra. But I don't know about the younger guys."

"We've got it in our minds that we're going to go up there and have a good shot at beating them," Newby added.

Football notes. . . Eastern may have to go with a make-shift offensive line Saturday after injuries hit three of the hogs in Tuesday's practice. Center Sean O'Brien suffered what coach Al Molde said was "a fluke knee injury" and won't return this year. Tackle Steve Bonnes has back spasms and remains questionable, while guard Mark Peterson suffered a thigh bruise but remains probable. Mike Hurley will fill in at center and Barry Wolfe at tackle if Peterson and Bonnes are unable to go, Molde said. In addition, wide receiver Charlie Williams may start at split end in place of Willie Cain, who has been hampered by illness this week. Williams was the starter before being injured three weeks ago.

Spikers ready for road finale on Kansas turf

By DAN VERDUN
Assistant sports editor

Eastern's volleyball team will take to the road for the final time this season when the Panthers make a swing through Kansas this weekend.

Eastern, 14-14 overall and 1-4 in the Gateway Conference, will open the road trip with a Thursday match in Lawrence, Kansas, against Kansas University.

The Panthers will then resume Gateway action by traveling to Wichita State Friday and Southwest Missouri Saturday.

"We don't know a lot about them (Kansas)," Eastern coach Betty Ralston said. "I do know that they're tall and fairly young. They don't have any seniors on the team."

Ralston said that not really knowing what to expect from the Jayhawks could turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

"Sometimes we tend to play better when we don't know anything about our opponent," Ralston said.

The Panthers have been in a tailspin, losing nine of their last 12 contests—including four straight. Eastern's last victory was Oct. 23 against St. Francis.

Eastern's Texas trip already had soccer coach Cizo Mosnia flying lower than a cruise missile. After seeing this week's coaches poll, the second-year coach could crash land.

The Panthers fell to sixth-place in the Intercollegiate Soccer Athletic Association Midwest Regional rankings, the first time in a month that Eastern has not been in the top five.

Chances for a playoff invitation at this stage of the season are unlikely and Mosnia expressed his doubt.

"It doesn't look good at all. It seems like we will get the same thing as last year," Mosnia said, recalling the Panthers not being selected with an 11-5-1 record last season.

In addition, some other radical changes occurred in the Midwest amongst the top five teams.

The most radical of all is the crowning of a new first place team in the Midwest.

Southern Methodist is the new leader, overtaking Air Force, which was knocked out of first place for the first time in six weeks.

The Mustangs galloped to a 14-4 record, defeating Quincy College, 3-0, and Eastern, 1-0, last week. And the 14-2-2 Falcons logged a 3-2 win over Western Illinois, but lost to Southern Illinois-Edwardsville 1-0.

Meanwhile, North Texas State climbed to the No. 3 pos., thanks to a controversial 2-1 win over the Panthers. The Mean Green hold a 10-5-2 record.

St. Louis University is the only team to remain stationary this week. The Billikens lost to nationally-ranked Connecticut 3-2, dropping their record to 10-4-2.

Western topped Illinois State 3-1, but lost to the Air Force to claim fifth. Western is now 11-6-2.

Eastern is sixth, with a 10-5-1 record and SIU-E is seventh. The 11-7 Cougars scored a major 3-0 win over Northeast Louisiana and Air Force, 1-0.

Houston Baptist, 13-4-1, rose two places to No. 8, while Illinois state, 9-5-3, fell to the ninth spot. New Mexico is ranked 10th with a 9-4-2 record.
